

is still there and remains in use. The central dance floor, however, has recently been replaced by a large, purpose-built bed. In fact, if the cages, crosses and other BDSM furniture were not visible, you could be forgiven for thinking you were still in an ordinary nightclub.

The main part of the club is one very large spacious room, with plenty of seating around the main bed area. There is also a fully licensed bar, where soft drinks, spirits and bottled beers are available at city-centre bar prices. For the earlybirds there was also a good two-for-one drinks offer which lasted until 10 pm.

Furthest away from the club entrance are a couple of beds and sofas sectioned off with drapes from the main area of the club, and lighting levels here are low enough that people in these areas don't feel as if they're on a stage. Although there were people standing by the drapes watching the evening's activities, nobody went past them. This, we found out later on in the evening, is one of the club rules.

One of the beds is fully enclosed with a wooden wall which had a number of 'peep-holes' for people's viewing pleasure. Sadly, total privacy for those wanting to play isn't an option, so if you do decide to have fun, you should remember that you may be seen by other guests in the club. Tissues, wipes and waste bins were located close by all of the play areas.

Additional facilities

There is also a well-appointed play room with a number of beds, stocks and horses for anybody wishing to dip their toes into the world of BDSM. This room was empty when we were shown around, and we didn't see any ropes, paddles or the like, so it does look as if it's a 'bring your own' set-up. Another of the club rules is that people who enter this room can do so in relative privacy as the doors stay closed, and only those participating in the play in this room are welcome – so no voyeurs.

Back in the main club area, there is also a large projector screen showing hard-core movies throughout the night. Plenty of seating is available by the screen and there's a large wooden dance floor for those wanting to shake their ass – the DJ was more than happy to play requests.

The staff we met throughout the evening were all pleasant and approachable, and when the MC of the Greedy Girls event briefed the club members on the etiquette for the evening, the staff members were all individually introduced. He also gave out clear instructions about the use of condoms. This was a reassuring point for people new to the club or to the swinging scene.

As it was our first time at Ceasars, we were given a brief tour, during which we asked a number of questions, all of which they answered very thoroughly.

Preparing for the evening

If you arrive at the club in what would be considered 'normal' clothes, throwing the babysitters or nosy neighbours off the scent, and want to change at the club, there are plenty of lockers for your belongings. These are available for a small charge, and you get the keys from the barstaff. There wasn't a separate changing room, so most people changed in the toilets. These were clean, tidy and had a range of toiletries available. The website does mention that showers are available, however, we didn't come across them ourselves. For anybody wishing to smoke, there was an outside area which could be used.

Staying fully clothed while walking around a swinging club was a new experience for us. Often we are used to wearing much less, such as a towel or just underwear. Maybe that's one of the reasons why everybody seemed to be so polite and respectful towards each other...

The atmosphere

Although a good venue can make a club worth a visit, the guests at the club can be the one factor that could determine any return visits. On the night we went to Ceasars, there was a good mix of singles and couples. Age range is often difficult to judge, but mid-twenties through to late fifties would cover most if not all of the people we saw. The majority would probably fall into the thirties to forties age-bracket.

One point that we feel we must raise is the courtesy and politeness from everybody we met and spoke with. Single guys can often be accused of being predatory in swingers' clubs. At Ceasars, we can say this was definitely not the case. Also, starting up conversations with people you've never met before can sometimes be awkward – but we found the exact opposite. We were so busy chatting to some of the other guests, we had to leave quickly to avoid being late home for our sitters.

Keeping your strength up!

Possibly the most surprising sight during our evening at Ceasars was the complimentary buffet. Nothing had been mentioned about this on the website, and when we spoke to the staff about it, they said buffets are laid on a couple of times a month. The food was plentiful and went way beyond a couple of sandwiches and a sausage roll. There was even a choice of hot food, pizza, and samosas. The chef worked really hard all night! Even with the Greedy Girls being an arm's length away, he only had eyes for the food. A true professional!

So we've now experienced our first night at Ceasars Nightclub – something that was long overdue – and despite our initial reservations, we enjoyed our time there so much, we may even become regular visitors!

MEMBERSHIP PRICES

Annual membership:

Couples	£20
Single males	£20
Single ladies	£10

Event prices: Greedy Girls Evening

(a team of regular girls lead the fun)
Single males £30
Couples and single ladies FREE Impulsion
(a good intro evening)
£15 per person on the door or
£12 if booked in advance

Saturday Night Out

Single males £40
Couples and single ladies £20 a head

Thank Fk it's Friday

Single males £30 –
couples and single ladies FREE

Rules to remember Dress code for swingers:

- Men – shirt with collar, trousers (not jeans) and shoes (no trainers)
- Ladies – smart dress to tease and impress

Dress code for fetish nights:

- Fetish, rubber, latex, glamour/eveningwear, uniforms, fantasy, period dress, cross-dress or smart black. If you arrive in street clothes you must use club facilities to change
- Single males permitted to all swinging events, provided they respect the rules of the club and adhere to the dress code
- Strictly over 21s only
- No 'guests of members' allowed – all visitors must join as members
- As there's a bar, you are not permitted to bring your own drink to the club
- There is zero tolerance of drugs

Contact details

Ceasars Nightclub, Kenilworth Road, Balsall Common, Coventry CV7 7HD

Tel: 07990 707141

Email: clubinfo@ceasarsnightclub.com

Website: www.ceasarsnightclub.com