The review offerings for this issue were a very mixed bag of 18s and R18s – and by the end of his viewing session, our faithful reporter was using his trusty tissues to wipe his eyes as well...

Toy Stories

If you enjoy watching women – because there are only women in here – masturbating, then this is a disc that you might very well want to add to your collection. Coming via The Adult Channel offerings from The Big Jim Productions stable, this is a 72-minute-long voyeuristic voyage through nine different episodes of nine different and quite attractive women wanking, using their fingers and a range of toys. Hence the title – Buzz Lightyear isn't in it... although several buzzy things are.

It is one of my overriding complaints about so many DVDs that, an R18 version would be so much better, and it must exist somewhere. Plain 18s can almost do the job, and can be supplied through a wider range of channels, but let's get real – they're not what people really want and it's about time the law was clarified to allow anyone who wants to retail the R18 versions.

Not wanting to get political, but a degree of this is a taxed licence issue. I know of several adult shops that won't stock R18 material due to the massive licence fee for so doing, and they're wary about what they sell just to make sure they don't topple into the higher licence band. However, enough whingeing about the current stupid system, and back to the film.

There is a good variety of body-shapes and looks, so there is something here to suit everyone. My personal favourite is lady number six – Paris. Maybe slightly more mature than the average model, but gorgeous. As well as very obviously having a good time, she starts off in nice clothes and keeps her hold-ups and shoes on throughout, including a good vibro DP element. Plus, she has a lovely modicum of pubic hair. While a bush that looks like Brian May in a hurricane isn't very attractive, I'm sure that many people, like me, are wearying of the 'last turkey in the shop' look that seems, increasingly, to be becoming the norm.

The disc comes with very limited features, which include a trailer of the film that you're already watching! You can scene select from the main menu, but it is annoying that in between each scene is yet another trailer for – yeah, you've guessed it – the film you're already watching.

For what it is, it's OK at only around £9.99
Rated 18, it's available from many sources but I can't give it any more than 5 out of 10.
